

General Manager of Infrastructure & Growth Management

The City of Barrie is one of Canada's most vibrant and progressive communities, a mid-size city that blends the dynamism of the southern Ontario economy and the lifestyle of the most coveted cottage country in the province. As the largest urban centre in Central Ontario, Barrie is poised for significant growth, with a population of 145,000 today that will rise to 253,000 in 2041. Council has a clear vision for this growth that aligns land use, infrastructure, and community amenities, supported by a sustainable financial model, and built on a diversified economy. Having committed to organizational excellence by embracing technology and service reforms, the City of Barrie is shifting to a proactive service delivery model to shape the municipal services of the future, in the midst of rapid community growth.

Reporting to the CAO, the General Manager of Infrastructure & Growth Management leads all asset-based functions (above ground and below) including land-use planning, development, construction, operations, and maintenance. With your team and resources in the amount of $100M operating and $86M capital, you plan, build, and improve infrastructure that enables the successful accomplishment of corporate and operational objectives. Ensuring alignment with Council's priorities, you play a key role in the continued growth and development of the City. You model behavior with stakeholders and community partners that showcases Barrie's outstanding customer service culture and collaborative approach.

You possess at least ten years of senior management experience in the municipal sector overseeing a range of similar portfolios or a leadership role in a consulting firm that supports municipal infrastructure initiatives. You've worked closely with developers and community stakeholders, and appreciate the various perspectives involved in a growing city. You have managed in times of growth in an urban setting and stay focused on the big picture while effectively delegating to your team. You are passionate about building teams and have a track record of developing livable communities.
